

How can the InDiCo approach be used to navigate the learning journey and reach learning objectives? (InDiCo train-the-trainer manual)

Edite Sobrinho, Project Officer at AFID Foundation

Introduction

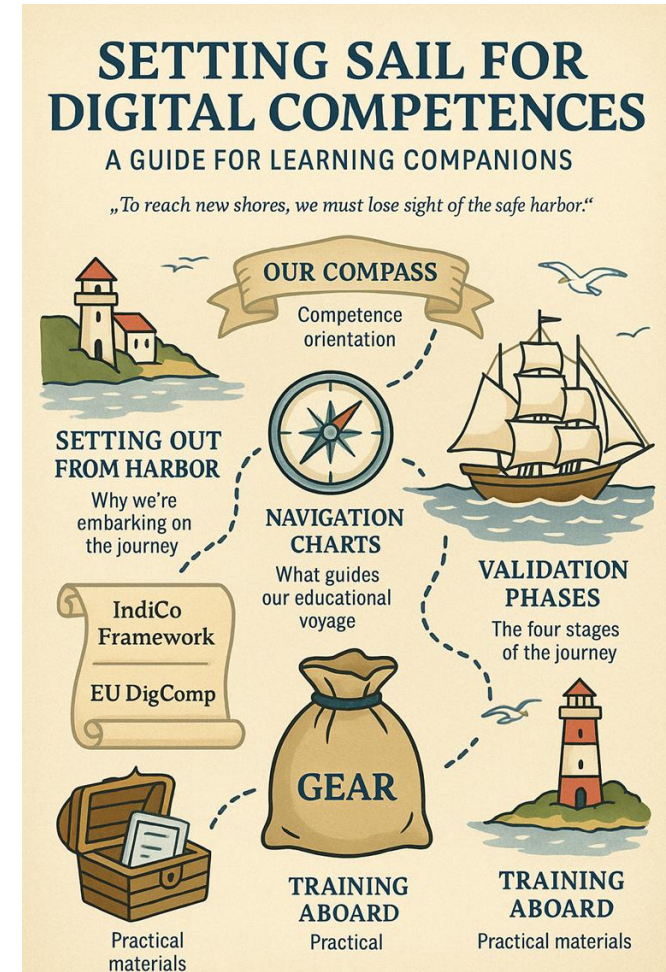

Welcome!

Learning as a journey:

- Guides accompany learners
- Each person follows their own pace

Today's question:

How does InDiCo lead to the learning goals?

The InDiCo approach

Goal

Opening the door to the digital world and reaching new shores

Method

Identify, assess, certify

Guides

Accompany each learner

The compass: competence orientation

«From sage on the stage to guide on the side»

- Focus on each learner's abilities
- Autonomy and a positive self-image
- Flexible, adaptable goals
- Individual potential valued

The nautical charts

EU DigComp

- 5 competence areas
- 21 digital competences
- General guidance

InDiCo Framework

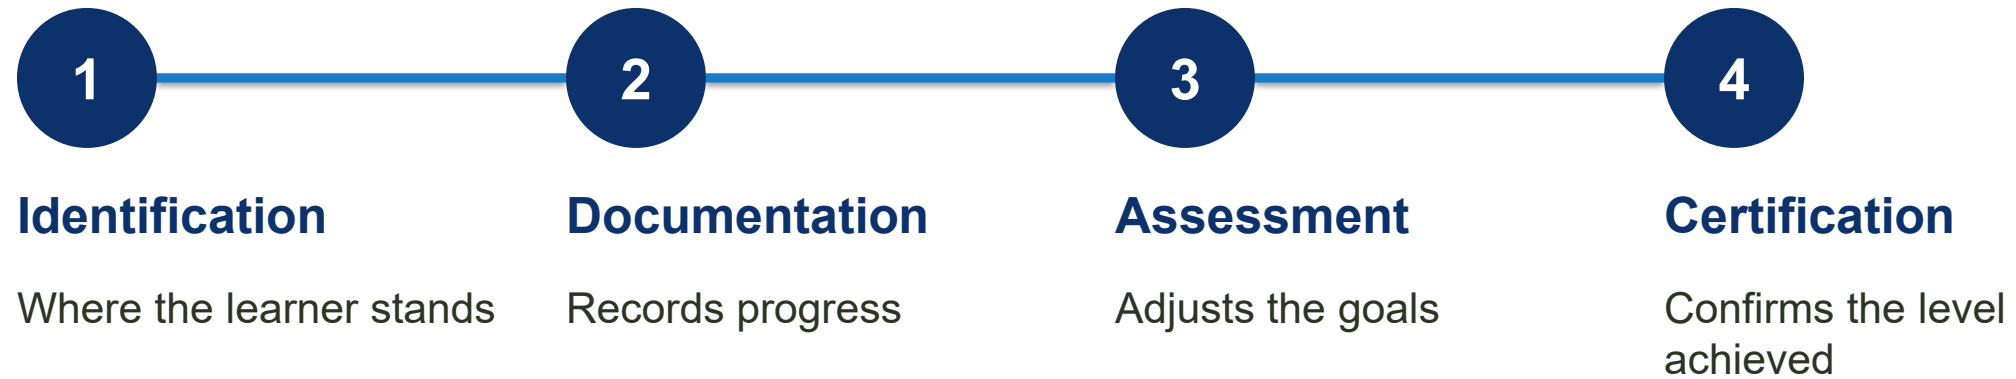

- 6 areas, 25 outcomes
- Proficiency levels 1 and 2
- Adapted for persons with learning difficulties

The six competence areas

- 0 · Foundations, access and digital understanding
- 1 · Information search, evaluation and management
- 2 · Communication and collaboration
- 3 · Content creation
- 4 · Safety, well-being and responsible use
- 5 · Problem identification and solving

The four stages of the journey

Certification is always voluntary.

Pedagogical dialogue

Self-assessment

The learner assesses their confidence

Guide's assessment

The guide observes progress

Pedagogical dialogue

Celebrates progress and plans next steps

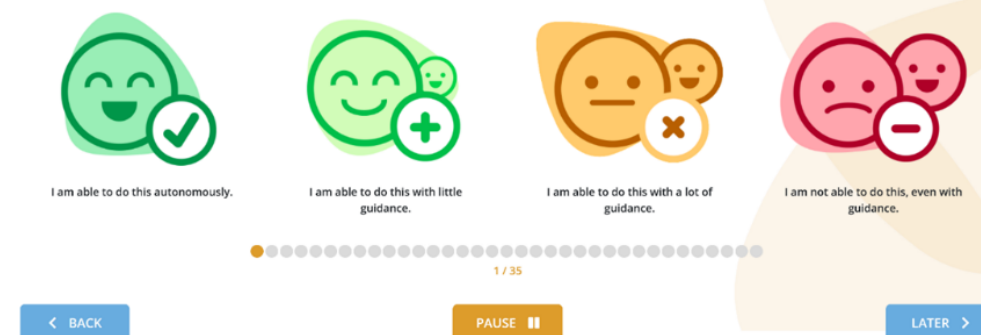

The InDiCo platform

Digital logbook

- Continuous monitoring
- Modular and flexible
- Always voluntary
- Certification with two assessors
- No entry requirements
- 4 autonomy levels, from 0 to >2

0. Foundations, access and digital understanding

He/She explains the difference between digital devices and non-digital devices.

InDiCo self-assessment tool

Three pedagogical actions

01 · Prior learning

Recognises existing knowledge

02 · Pedagogical dialogue

Joint reflection on the journey

03 · Balance

Reconciles the individual with the common standard

Why InDiCo fits our target group

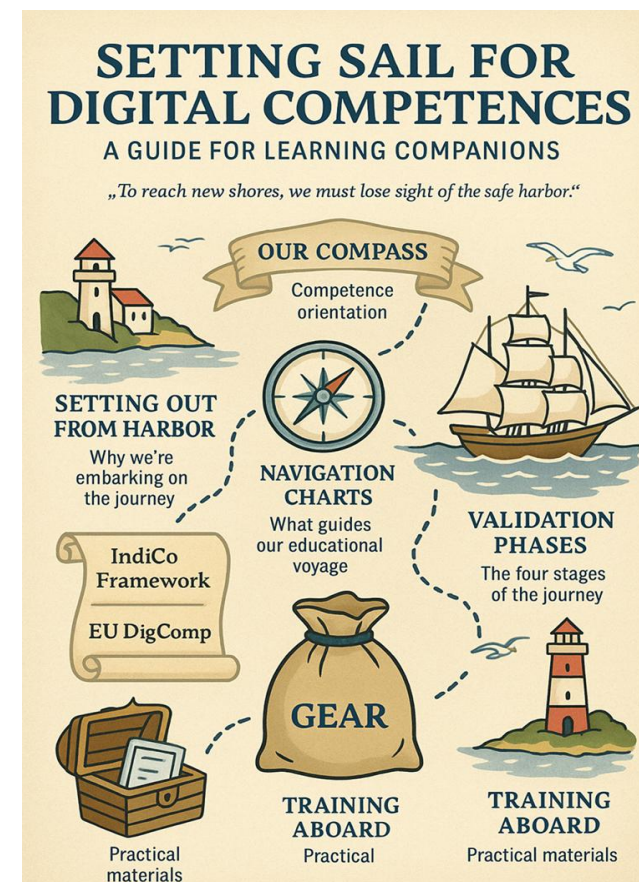

- Plain, clear, easy-to-read language
- Multisensory and visual learning (pictograms, videos)
- Small groups with individualised attention
- Gamification to boost motivation
- Real-life tasks to consolidate learning (e.g. booking an appointment online)
- Formative, flexible assessment
- Trainers experienced in supporting learners with functional diversity

Conclusion

InDiCo guides the journey with a compass, nautical charts and a shared logbook — all the way to the learning goals.

- Modular, collaborative structure
- 25 outcomes across 6 competence areas
- Each milestone motivates the next
